

Christie Brockhage is the regional manager for the Newport Beach bureau of Business Wire. Her company electronically disseminates full-text news releases simultaneously to the news media, the Internet, online services and databases, and the global investment community. Christie began her career with Business Wire in August of 1996 as district manager and was promoted to regional manager in January of 2002.

Prior to joining Business Wire, Christie was the branch manager in Atlanta for Adecco, one of the world's largest personnel services. Prior to Adecco, Christie worked in sales and marketing positions for Trammell Crow, and Smart Start Technologies.

Christie's experience encompasses client sales, client consulting and development, marketing, survey programs, market analysis and research, seminar and event planning, advertising and public relations in a variety of industries including broadcast, television, advertising, real estate, employment, public relations and investor relations.